

Nashville Union.

BECKETT, BROWN, HANKS & CO.
G. W. HANKS,
P. JONES.

SUNDAY, JUNE 17, 1866.
To the Patrons of the Nashville Union.

The decline in business in Nashville during the past three months has been most marked. Every branch of trade and commerce, and of the industrial pursuits, has felt, in some degree, its paralyzing effects. We have felt them, not merely in the decrease of advertising and the circulation of the Union, but in the difficulty of making collections to meet our daily accruing expenses. Whilst compelled to pay cash for labor and every thing consumed in the prosecution of our business, we have been compelled, to a very large extent, to extend credit to those who patronized us, and many of them failing to meet their obligations, has imposed upon us the necessity of using up what capital is left us, or abandoning the publication of our newspaper. We have determined, very reluctantly, to adopt the latter course. So with the present issue, the daily NASHVILLE UNION will be suspended. We trust that this suspension will be only temporary, and that with the revival of business next autumn, if it does revive, we shall find the prospect sufficiently inviting to justify us in resuming it again.

In the meantime the Weekly NASHVILLE UNION will be continued and published every Saturday morning. It will contain all the news of the week, together with miscellaneous and other matter, giving it interest as a family newspaper. Advertisements in the Daily unexpired will be inserted in the Weekly.

The Nashville Union Job Office is one of the best in the South-west, and will be continued in operation as heretofore. The stock of materials comprehends an unusual variety, amongst which are the latest styles of types, &c. We shall have competent and skillful printers, and solicit a continuation of the favors we have heretofore received.

We take leave of our friends, the reading public, with sincere regret. The NASHVILLE UNION was started in the dark days of 1862, when it was uncertain what would be the result of the unnatural war into which our country had been precipitated by wicked and designing politicians. Throughout the administration of the Military Governor it gave him a warm and unfaltering support, and gave its influence to all just measures, calculated to bring peace to our people and restore Tennessee to her proper relations with the General Government. The war ended, and peace returned once more to bless the land, it sustained President Johnson in his noble and magnanimous efforts to rehabilitate the Southern States in all their rights except those admitted to be lost by the decision of the appeal to arms against the South. It had full faith in the policy inaugurated by the President, and maintained by him with a firmness and spirit creditable alike to the age and to American courage and persistency; and has seen no cause to doubt the ultimate triumph of that policy. It cannot be that the great masses of this nation will reject it, and adopt in its stead the measures of its enemies, which, if not so intended, will perpetuate discord and strife, and wrong and oppression. Firm in this faith, we are full of hope for the future, in the triumph of just principles and the restoration of all the States to their proper places in the glorious old constellation. When this consummation is reached, as we devoutly believe it will be, we shall subscribe with renewed zeal and patriotism to the immortal sentiment of the honored Webster—"Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable."

With these remarks we make our exit for the present.

PROSPERITY OF THE UNION.

BULL RUN REPEATED IN CANADA.—The Canadians used to be fond of referring to Bull Run as an evidence of the fighting qualities of the Southern, and the running qualities of the Northern Army. We are not, however, hereafter likely to hear anything more of that unpleasant affair from that quarter. If we did, it would only be necessary to mention Ridgeway and Philipburg to silence them. At Ridgeway, Canada West, on the first charge of the Fenians, the brave Canadians took to their heels, scattering the line of their retreat with coats, caps, muskets, haversacks, canteens, and every sort of equipments—only stopping when they reached Cornwall, a distance of fourteen miles. And the following happened at Philipburg, Canada East, as told by the correspondent of the Boston Journal. I tell the story as given by a member of Parliament from the eastern township. It seems that the commander at St. John's sent out a company under Capt. Carter, Philipburg, to watch the movements of the enemy, with instructions to fall back if attacked. The soldiers were on the alert, being close to the boundary, beyond which the invading army, under Gen. Spauld, was supposed to be drawn up in line of battle. A horseman appeared, a scout gave the alarm, and Capt. Carter, putting his men to the double quick, ran them eighteen miles to St. John's, where they ran utterly exhausted, having thrown away their guns and equipments. In their haste, they cut across lots, wading through swamps and muddy places, and upon arriving at St. John's were in a sad plight. The good people of that town were in great trepidation. The troops were put in position for defense; merchants packed their goods; families made preparations to flee, and the whole surrounding country was alarmed. Such is the story, which is a exceedingly mortifying to the people here, as Bull Run was to the North.

Managers in the House of Representatives.

We do not think, (says the New York Evening Post,) it right to pass over in silence the extraordinary scene in Congress, on Monday, between Mr. Grinnell, of Iowa, and Mr. Rousseau, of Kentucky. Congress used to furnish, in old times, occasional specimens of what were called "plantation managers," but Mr. Grinnell excels even Henry A. Wise as a scold, and we doubt if, of the House which listened to him, the oldest member had ever been witness to a more flagrant breach of parliamentary decorum than he committed.

General Rousseau, as a Kentuckian, a soldier, and a man noted for headstrong courage, might have been expected to retort in kind, but he did himself great honor by his moderation and entire self-possession. He acted, under extreme provocation, like a true gentleman; and no bravery in battle ever raised him higher in the esteem of respectable men, than the composure with which he bore the unparliamentary and indecent language of Mr. Grinnell.

We hope the House and its Speaker will not suffer a repetition of such language or conduct within its walls. Gentlemen, like General Rousseau, ought not to be exposed to such outrages.

Russian.

The Emperor Alexander, who recently escaped with his life from the assault of an intended assassin, has been moved to issue a rescript in regard to certain tendencies of the day. He says the attempt, which everywhere through Russia provoked an expression of devotion from his faithful subjects, has served to show how these fatal doctrines are propagated. He adds, it has so "pleased Providence to manifest to the eyes of Russia the consequences to be anticipated from these tendencies, and those sophistical doctrines, which boldly attack every object which centuries have taught us to venerate—religious faith, and the foundations of the family, property, obedience to the laws and respect for established power."

As a means of counteracting these tendencies, the Emperor proposes that the youth should be educated in a religious way, and that every "propagand" of destructive doctrines should be vigorously interdicted into educational establishments. He proposes also to see that the respect for the inviolability of the right of property is maintained. He refers to the fact that functionaries in the service of the State have not abstained from taking part in the circulation of reports and erroneous judgments as to the acts and intentions of the Government, and even in the propagation of those subversive principles whose development ought to be interdicted. This, he says, must be stopped, and chiefs of administration must watch the acts of their subordinates, and claim from them the direct, exact, and rigorous fulfillment of the obligations which have been imposed on them, without which there can be no homogeneous administration.

The Emperor is determined to have a strong and conservative government, and to allow the entrance of no reformatory doctrine.

A Washington letter states that some of the radicals here are endeavoring to make a compromise by which John W. Forney can be elected to the U. S. Senate in place of Mr. Cowan, whose term expires on the 4th of March next. They would do well to wait and see what party carries the Legislature next fall.

Every European mail brings the reiteration of the indignation of the English people over the news of the bombardment of Valparaiso. They vent their anger upon Rear Admiral Denman, who had strict orders to abstain from interference, and to maintain strict neutrality, and they pitch into the British Minister in Chili with like reproaches, as if he had anything to do with it. These are certainly the wrong parties to be blamed, if any blame is deserved, except by the Spaniards, for their wanton and disgraceful act. It is the English Government or Ministry that are really the derelict, as they alone could give the orders necessary to authorize or justify any English interference. The English losses by the bombardment were very heavy, and the act was outrageous and unbecomingly conspicuous among which are those of British history, which indeed form the largest proportion of them.

This historical fact was admitted during the debate in the House of Commons. Some of the Opposition, in reply to the assertion that it was a barbarous thing to bombard a defenseless town, called the attention of members to the fact of the bombardment of the undefended town of Kagosima, in Japan, by British ships, which had been defended on that floor; and that Canton had been bombarded, causing an immense loss of life and destruction of property, because the Chinese had refused to admit Sir John Bowring within the walls of that city in full uniform—a pretext for that barbarity which as contemptible as that of Spain in destroying lives and property, because the Chinese refused to perform the idle ceremony of saluting the Spanish flag.

British history is full of such instances, and the English never complained of them—probably because the lives and property of the English had not been sacrificed. But at Valparaiso it was quite a different thing, and although the Spaniards only followed British precedents, they are accused of atrocious conduct.

BULL AFTER DINNER.—The material condition of our country has been no cause for anxiety. Our wealth is overflowing, our commercial prospects are unclouded, save by the excess of our own activity, and nothing seems likely to disturb either the peace of Europe, or the profound contentment which this island is enjoying. London Quarterly Review, January, 1866, p. 131.

BULL IN MAY FOLLOWING.—Here's ruin and war and pestilence upon us! London bankrupt, and Europe a hot-bed of pestilence. Fenians, Rinderpest, Universal Suffrage and Cholera, and I'm a beggar without a friend. Just my volunteer uniform, my white feather, and take a broadsword, to that manly old lion. I'll feed him on Quarterly Reviews, damme!

An English letter says that Judah P. Benjamin has been summarily admitted to full practice in all the courts, without any preparatory practice or examination. The strong confederate sympathies of the English bar, and the way for him in a manner that creates much comment among people of different views on the American question.

ADMISSION OF TENNESSEE.—The Washington Correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial says:—

Forty members of Congress have signed a letter addressed to Governor Brownlow, of Tennessee, asking him to convene the Legislature, for the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment, which finally passed the House on Tuesday. It is to be done, Tennessee, it is most probable that her Congressional delegation will be admitted as the condition of this action.

The Ohio delegation had a meeting this evening at Mr. Eggleston's rooms, to consider the question of voting to immediately admit Tennessee.

Monitors Crossing the Atlantic. Mr. John Bourne, C. E., says in a letter which has been published:—

"By letters which I have just received from America, it appears that the monitor Minotaur, a sister ship of the Monitor, is about to leave that country for England, and may be expected in Portsmouth about the 25th of June. Mr. P. is the able and energetic assistant secretary of the American navy, is coming over in the vessel, which at least shows that he has no doubt of the seaworthy qualities of that kind of craft, although the sides are so low, and the masts so high. The impregnable character of the monitors, from the lowness of their sides, and the immense thickness of their armor, has long been widely known; but in Europe doubts of their seaworthiness, based on superficial considerations, have been recently propagated. In the idea, perhaps, that the public faith in the excellence of the European type of iron-clad vessels should be maintained. These illusions, however, the voyage of the Minotaur could dispel. The vessel, in fact, is a masterpiece of naval architecture, and no doubt doing to display, and mechanical skill at least will be able to confer five minutes without the most imminent risk of being sent to the bottom. The officers and crew of the monitors are entitled to the highest praise for the skill and courage with which they have conducted vessels of so novel a character over stormy seas, and the fact that they have done so, and that the naval men of this country will not be slow to appreciate these qualities, and to give their brother monitors a cordial welcome when they arrive."

Extract from Gen. Steedman's Report of the Freedmen's Bureau. He says:—

SEA ISLAND. On the 13th of May we left Charleston by steamer, and visited first the Sea Islands on the coast of South Carolina, and then the islands of the Georgia, under the exclusive control of the Bureau. There are on these islands one hundred and forty-one valid property titles to land, and we may say that the freedmen now on all the South Carolina islands are about 30,000. They form, however, but a small proportion of the aggregate number who have occupied the islands since the general Sherman order was issued; many of those who first came remained on the island but a short time, and then returned to their homes on the main land. Others, who made small crops, gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished by the planters. Last year the freedmen on the islands gathered there in, and left to seek more profitable employment. A large majority of the freedmen who still remain on the island are in destitute circumstances. On Ward Island, in the Georgia, many who are cultivating lands for themselves were compelled to abandon their crops, were it not for the provisions furnished